

Losing a Loved Animal: The Eternal Gift of Love

July 10th,
6 - 9 pm
Journey's, Salem
$40

This class is an introduction to how animals view the end of life's cycle, and life after death. Drawing on her work as an internationally known animal communicator, Lauren will discuss experiences that animals have related to her about the transition process, leaving loved ones behind, the purpose of their journey in life, reincarnation and the eternal gift of love. Though spiritual in nature, the class is not based on any religious belief, rather the animal's point of view.

Losing a Loved Animal is ideally suited to anyone who loves animals and has experienced, or is about to experience, the loss of a beloved animal companion. While not intended to focus on 'grief and loss', participants should benefit from a clear understanding of where animals believe they go when they pass on, and how they can be contacted by those left behind. A guided imagery exercise will be conducted to help participants initiate the animal communication process.

Lauren McCall has been teaching animal communication and TTouch for 11 years. She has an international client base for her work and she teaches in the US, Japan, Europe and Canada. Lauren is also a published author and the creator of the internationally known animal communication in-home study course, "Making the Connection," and currently lives in Oregon with her partner, a dog, cat, 2 guinea pigs and a very sweet rabbit.
